2009 Renewal Gift

"A Gift from God"

Pictured here is the 2009 renewal black and white made exclusively for Society members. Titled "A Gift from God," this additional membership benefit is available free only to renewing members.

To receive this gift, just renew your membership for 2009, and it will be mailed to you inside the same box as your brooch. Do NOT accidentally throw this attractive little print away. Its unique size enables it to be displayed in all kinds of fun places. It is especially enjoyable on a book shelf.

Print to Benefit Moss Foundation

The print of "Amoré," featuring a yellow rose, was released at the December Barn Show. The cost of the regular print is $70; the edition size is 1,500. The image is also available on either gold or silver metal; that edition size is 250. $14 of every sale will go to the Moss Foundation. It makes a wonderful companion to "With My Love," the red rose image released last year.

The Barn Remains Pat's Showplace Home

Thousands of Pat's collectors have visited her at The Barn, her Waynesboro home, during her quarterly open houses there. Since many more of her fans have never been there, let's look more closely at this structure.

In the late 1970's, Pat started planning a place of her own where she could have a bigger and better studio with more peace and quiet than in her home with several teenagers. She found a barn at the edge of what used to be an apple orchard. For many years, the orchard had used it to pack apples.

The building was a bank barn style built into a hillside. The basement level could be entered at the ground level, and the main floor had a ground level entrance on the opposite side. Many contractors she consulted believed it was so dilapidated that it was unworkable. The roof had holes in it, hay was still stored on the top level, horse manure was on the main floor, and goats lived in the partial basement.

The main level was one big open room. A wood floor had been placed over wood beams and then cement was poured over that for easier cleaning. Since she loved the openness of the room, Pat retained that feel. The only interior door on this level is to a bathroom. She added a kitchen which is accessible from two directions but without doors. The rest remains completely open with a fireplace, which the contractor designed and built on the south wall, as the focal point.

The top level had oak floors, which came from the surrounding land, but there were too many nails in the planks for them to be planed and re-used. Instead Pat chose to use a metal-pipe super structure to brace the barn to keep it standing. The interior supports remain visible.

The west side of this second level consists of an entirely open studio area plus a TV seating area. The east side contains a bedroom and a huge bath area. It is not possible to go across between the two sides without going up and down the two sets of stairs. Later, she installed a large Jacuzzi in this bathroom. The kids could all get in it at once and relax after skiing. This addition is probably the one thing she would not have done. Instead, she would prefer to create a small sitting area in there with a comfy chair to sit in to read.

The basement contains a bedroom and a third bath, but it has primarily been used for storage. Before the Museum was built in 1989, there was a small shop in this area. Pat originally stored all her extra, unsold prints in her home and then in The Barn. Later they were moved to The Moss Portfolio in Fairfax and finally to Mathews. Currently, an etching press and silkscreen equipment are also on this level. When her daugh

*From the President2008 Was Another Successful Society Year

Dear Members,

I would like to thank all of you who continue to be members of the P. Buckley Moss Society.

Even as the economy is hard hit, you have continued to support our chapters and charities. In 2009, the board members will be working on ideas to help the Society grow. We are cutting back on meetings, only two this year, and on the size of the Board. We hope to accomplish much and work with the Foundation to carry on Pat's commitment to the charities and children.

Looking back, 2008 was another great year of fun for the Society. At the convention in Riverside, Iowa, we celebrated our "Proud to Be an American" theme at the dinner dance. With the freedom bags that were put together by chapters plus the silent and live auctions, it was very successful. The attendees collected 283 new towels for Four Oaks Home. Great job, Iowa chapters!!

The chapter training session in Waynesboro in August was terrific, thanks to Peggy Goodwin, our Vice President of Chapters, and her committee. Everyone was so excited to see what our chapters are doing and to spend time with fellow members who have the love for what the Society is all about. The chapters are the backbone of the Society, and the board appreciates the work they do.

The Moss Portfolio sponsored its second convention in Roanoke in September, and the Society continued with this year's theme, freedom bags, silent auction, live auction, and dinner dance. Our Virginia chapters came together to help make this convention so successful by putting together the bags and helping with the auctions. What would we do without all these great people?

For all of you who have signed up to receive the Sentinel on line, we thank you. Over 500 have already signed up. If you are interested and have not signed up yet, please look on our web site or contact the office.

I am looking forward to next year. Happy New Year to all.

Sincerely,

Mary Lou

Dear Friends,

Many people seem to despair over winter weather, but I look forward to winter with joy and excitement. In addition to Christmas, there is so much fun to be had in the ice and snow and the beauty of the white blanket covering the trees and the land. I grew up on Staten Island, New York, and we had cold winters with lots of snow, so we sledded and ice skated. I remember ice skating almost as soon as I could walk. I never had to be taught how to skate; I just put the skates on and off I went. Several times it rained on top of the snow and then froze. I put my skates on and skated across our lawn, across the road, and down the hill to the pond. I would skate all day until I was numb.

My six children were raised in Waynesboro, Virginia, in the Shenandoah Valley, and we had the perfect hill for sledding and a frozen pond every winter. I bought all the kids skates and was astonished when they fell down. I said, "Well, you just put them on and push off," when they asked me how.

My children's friends would all come to sled down our hill, so I always had a house full of children every winter. I remember one group of cold, wet kids would come in to have their mittens, hats, and coats put in the dryer and get hot chocolate while another group was on their way back out. There was lots of hot chocolate served in that house!

These are some of my happiest memories, and that's probably why I paint so many winter scenes with skating and sledding.

Love,

Do you know what these artistic terms mean as they relate to the works of Pat Moss?

OFFSET LITHOGRAPH

Pat usually begins by painting most of her originals with watercolors. If she is making a large number of prints from a painting, it is photographically and mechanically reproduced by a modern color printing press. Advanced printing techniques use the finest English inks and rag papers. The paper is made from linen or cotton fibers and is free of acid, allowing it to last for many years.

LIMITED EDITION

This is a set of identical prints which have been signed and numbered (S/N) by the artist. Pat's normal offset print editions are limited to 1,000 copies. The main exceptions to this number are the Christmas prints and the Society members-only prints. For the past several years, Pat's signature has been put on each print by machine. She will, however, sign the print for you again either on the paper or, if it is framed, on the glass. After this, everything used to print the edition is destroyed along with any rejected or extra prints. Look at any prints you have to see what numbers are on them.

ARTIST'S PROOF

Pat typically keeps for herself 25 of the extra copies that are printed. Again, this information is stated on the print, although often the framing covers it up. Sometimes, these prints, which she personally owns, may be sold to collectors.

ETCHING

This is considered an original work of art rather than a copy. Pat uses an etching needle to cut an image into two steel plates. This is a very complicated process before she is ready to apply the inks by hand. Each color must be wiped into the surfaces where it belongs and away from where it does not. To print an etching, Pat places a dampened cotton paper on top of the colored plate. The paper goes through a rolling press to put the colors on. Then a second plate with the etched black lines must be placed in the exact same position. These lines print on top of the areas of color. Because both plates must be re-inked by hand before printing, no two pieces in the edition size of 99 turn out exactly the same. This is a very time-consuming and complicated procedure, which is why Pat does so few of these each year.

GICLÉE

This procedure creates a product which is closer to the artist's original work of art than any other. Pat's original painting is photographed under specific light conditions. A digital file is then created on the computer. A technician adjusts the colors carefully so that image matches the original as closely as possible. Once Pat approves the quality, the image is printed to paper or to canvas. (Most of Pat's have been done on paper.) The ink is sprayed back and forth across the surface, line by line. Each sheet is fed into the printer individually and takes between 30 and 60 minutes to print. Finally, the sheet is trimmed to the final size. Because it is digitally stored, an image can be printed one at a time over a period of time. The image can also be printed in an assortment of sizes.

REMARQUE

This is any print, either original or reproduction, which contains something that is not common to the whole edition of the same print. For example, to a print of "Daredevil Skater," which shows five children cautiously walking on the frozen pond, she added the remarque of a little girl who has fallen down. She might add another cat or two or a building in the background or seasonal decorations to a building. It is her chance to "finish" a picture again when the original painting is not available to her. A remarque significantly increases the value of this item.

Study the Moss art which you have in your home. How many of each of these techniques does your family have?

Society Barge Trip Again Provides Fun

The above travelers on the Fall Foliage and Fillies 2008 Society trip on the RiverBarge Explorer had a fun, leisurely trip on the Ohio River October 16-23. The weather gods again cooperated, although cool and the foliage was particularly late this year. Pat joined the group on Oct. 19 for a well-deserved rest.

The fillies portion of the trip was much better. On Saturday, the group stopped for a tour of the Woodford Reserve Distillery on the way to Keeneland Race Track near Lexington. Nobody lost or won much, but it was fun to see all the hoopla at a major horse racing facility.

One day the group played Moss Jeopardy, with Al Sandstrom proving to be the most knowledgeable person about Pat and her works. Another fun game was Buzzword. People enjoyed it so much that they requested to play it a second time. As other barge travelers walked by, they became caught up in the enthusiasm and even joined the play. The person who completed the most responses was Leslie Mohler. Shirley Collins and Pat Moss did the best at the picture identification game. Astonishingly, Pat did not identify the high school picture of the person in the group she knows the best, Ginger Cloonan. Another fun activity was piecing together a Moss puzzle. Most adept at this were Al, Ginger, Shirley, Marlene Ham, Shirley VanTine, and Eva Marie Nesbit.

But the highlight for Eva Marie was visiting the bridge in the middle of the night (e.g., 4 a.m.) to watch the departure from Cincinnati and to observe going through locks. She became quite friendly with the captain! Craig Butterfield enjoyed dancing with several women the night of the big band entertainment. People began to wonder whose cabin he would be going to later; of course, it was wife Elaine's. Ginger began quite an affair with one of the crew. Izzy, a sun conure parrot, joined the barge a couple years ago. He/she (Izzy a boy or Izzy a girl?) and Ginger had quite the whistling conversations.

The shore excursions were fun and laid back. The food was outstanding, and nobody will admit how many pounds were gained. But the best part of any Moss trip is always the camaraderie. Join a trip and see for yourself. ❖

Chapters Continue Charity Efforts, Activities

MOSS IN THE VALLEY Chapter (Salem/Roanoke, VA) members have had another busy year. The major project was a raffle of "Baylor's Mill," which raised $2,597 to benefit RAM (Roanoke Area Ministries), an ecumenical ministry serving the needs of the Roanoke Valley. It provides shelter and meals to families in the Valley, as well as outreach ministries and counseling for education. Winner of the remarked print was Doris Dickers.

The chapter also raised $549 with a white elephant sale and $120 with a Fun-d calendar to provide funds for other charitable projects. Some of these included: donated $336 to Ronald McDonald House; furnished the meat ($94) to provide dinner for families at the House; provided $650 for two scholarships for teachers to attend the Foundation's Creative Mind Conference. Members also filled 30 tote bags of personal items for Salvation Army Turning Point for Battered Women's Shelter, donated items to SPCA, bought 12 luminaries for "Light the Night" Cancer Fund, donated items for freedom bags at the Roanoke convention, and furnished the dessert for the dinner at chapter training.

MOSS SHOWS CHILDREN Chapter (Kansas City, MO) sponsored a Bunko Party to benefit Back-Snack of the Northland, whose sponsor is St. James Lutheran Church. Back packs are donated to the church and are then filled every Friday with kid-friendly food to help them make it through the weekend. With donations down, the church was very excited about the chapter willing to help out with cash donations. Altogether, the event raised $1,170 for Back-Snack.

Members once again dove deep into their pockets and donated wonderful door prizes totaling over $900. Jo Closterman won the top raffle prize, a remarked print of "Frosty Morn"; Carolyn Haney won a framed Moss cross stitch snowman; and Nita Divelbiss won the Moss snow globe. Altogether 64 people attended this fun event on October 13.

On August 16, chapter members met to embellish 30 hard-back children's books for the Children's Center for the Visually Impaired. Members individually purchased the books. Then they embellished them with a variety of materials to enable the children to feel and better understand the story as it is being read to them. After the books are loved a lot at the center, the children are allowed to take them home.

LAKE MARBURG MOSS Chapter (Hanover, PA) raised $2,250 on its Vera Bradley Bingo Party on October 5 to benefit the P. Buckley Moss Endowed Scholarship Fund. They had 40 door prizes, 15 consolation prizes, eight big ticket raffle prizes, and 20 bingo game prizes. Many of these items were filled with other items such as gift cards. More than 60 people of the 150 attendees left the event with some sort of prize. The remarked print of "Just Like Mom's" raised $501 of that total. Chapter member Cathy Gorsuch from Fairplay, Maryland, won the print. She had purchased tickets to play but was unable to attend at the last minute; she was excited that an audience member pulled her winning ticket.

TREES OF LIFE Chapter (Defiance, OH) held its annual holiday dinner on Nov. 16. Activities included an ornament exchange, a power point presentation of the year's activities, and a "volunteer raffle," where names are placed in the hopper each time a member volunteers or attends a meeting throughout the year. The winner was Jane Parker, who received a packet of P. Buckley Moss quilt notecards.

Special guests were the recipient of this year's fundraiser, Taylor Tumblin and her mother Kelly. Taylor was born with a birth defect known as Trisomy

Trees of Life Chapter enjoyed having 3-year-old Taylor Tumblin, its fundraiser recipient, attend its annual holiday dinner.

18 and was not expected to live beyond 30 days. In June, Taylor celebrated her third birthday with the Trees of Life members. The fundraiser was a September calendar of 30 prizes where a different winner was selected each day. Prizes included several Moss prints, brooches, cookbooks, gift baskets, gift cards, and many other beautiful prizes. The $4,200 raised was used to purchase a special chair and bed for Taylor.

APPLESEEDS OF MOSS Chapter (Bellefontaine, OH) donated three items to the Logan County Education Foundation for a benefit raffle. Two dedicated grants will be awarded in the spring to special education and/or art teachers from Logan County. The raffle earned $1,089 for the program. Larry Mawhorr won the "End of Day" print, Ben Davis won the "Favorite Escape" print, and Sandy Musser won the signed Christmas stocking.

PAT'S HAPPY HOOSIERS Chapter (Ft. Wayne, IN) raised $600 on the raffle of "Spirit of the Valley"; Kathleen Eikost was the winner. The funds will benefit the Red Cedar Camp to help kids go to camp and to buy new equipment for horses in their therapeutic riding program for disabled children.

MOSS IN THE COUNTRY Chapter (Daleville/N. Roanoke, VA) raffled the remarked print of "Evening Time"; winner was chapter member Crystal Bryant. The proceeds of $3,822 were divided equally for The Achievement

Total raised for charity in these chapter reports is an excellent $18,108!

MOSS REFLECTIONS Chapter (Cedar Rapids, IA) has committed to a two-year support for the Aid to Women building, which was flooded in June with all of the contents (staff materials, furniture, food and clothing donations, and the resale shop) destroyed. Because many non-profits in Cedar Rapids were destroyed, there is a tremendous need to seek outside support.

Aid to Women is a non-profit organization which encourages and teaches women to better themselves socially, intellectually, spiritually, and economically. For 25 years, they have been committed to providing help to women and their families in making healthy, informed decisions. Many of these women who had hardships before are now even more devastated with the loss of homes and jobs because of the flood. Over 5,000 homes were partially or totally destroyed.

If you wish to assist this chapter in its efforts, you can send a donation to Aid to Women, P.O. Box 1275, Cedar Rapids, IA 52406. ❖

Society Members Make Memorable Friends

Moss in the Valley Chapter has a special friend and supporter in Ed Morgan. A member of the Society since 1998, he has served as past president of the chapter, as well as on many committees. He currently serves as our vice president and has been re-elected for 2009.

Being the only active male member of our chapter, Ed is the "gopher and muscles" of our group. He carries our print for the raffle from place to place, helps set up our tent at special events for our raffle sales, and is the first to volunteer to sell raffle tickets all day. He is willing to do any job asked of him.

Ed gives unselfishly to the chapter, working hard to schedule interesting and informative programs. He personally provides door prizes for each meeting and also donates and promotes the fundraisers for our chapter.

Ed takes great pride in his collection of Pat's art and loves to share her work with others. He never meets a stranger when he talks about Moss, whether it is about Pat Moss herself or about Moss in the Valley.

He continues to try to learn new ideas to assist our chapter. He attended the Chapter Training session at the Museum in August. He not only learned some new ideas, which we have already put into place, but he also made some new friends, one of whom is shown with him in the picture.

Ed. Note: If you have a story to share about someone you would not know if you weren't involved in the Society, send it to Marlyn De Waard, 198 Brentwood Dr., BattleCreek, MI 49015.

Ed Morgan became very friendly with Fiona, who is dressed to celebrate the Taste of Cortona at the last Chapter Training weekend in August.

ter Becky visits from Italy, they work on projects here.

The exterior when Pat bought it was made of cinder blocks. She chose vertical board siding to create the illusion of more height. Her son John designed the entrance roof to the main entrance. She recently added a porch off the kitchen area. The only thing she might have done differently originally was to put a roof over the back porch area so it wouldn't be so sunny out there.

It took about a year of solid work to transform this "unrepairable heap," as the contractor called it, to a 10,000 square foot showplace with 14 skylights. Twelve tandem loads of trash needed to be hauled away. The biggest challenge for Pat was being in two places at once. She found it frustrating to be away when the crew was working on something without her input. A few times they had to tear something down and redo it the way Pat envisioned it should be.

About a year later, she started work on what became the cottage. Originally, it was to store the tractor and garage her car. Then it was to have a bunk room for when the older kids came. It just kept expanding until it became a charming two-story home. It is often referred to as Gran Liz's cottage, but daughter Ginny and her husband and two kids lived there for several years too. When Pat is in Waynesboro, she usually stays in the cottage because it is cozier.

Pat's desire in building The Barn was to create unconfined living and working space, first within the house and then extending to the outside, to the valley, and to the distant hills. It originally sat on five acres, but Pat subsequently added 17 more. Partially, that was so nobody could build nearby and thus destroy that wonderful view to the south. Most visitors agree that she has succeeded in her goal. If you have never visited The Barn, why not plan to attend one of the 2009 open houses? Seeing all her artwork there is like visiting a second Moss Museum. ❖
